

Follow the Bunny Hop Trail Around the Gardens

Eleanor and Reginald are two of the bunnies who live here at the Museums. They have lots of favorite spots they visit every day. Use the pictures to guide you to each bunny landmark. Give yourself bonus points if you see any bunnies along the way!

IVY BED: BUNNY HOME BASE

When they're not out hopping around the grounds, Reginald and Eleanor live in the ivy bed around the gazebo. See what a thick green blanket it makes! Not much rain gets through it.

CODFISH

The bunnies don't eat fish, but they do enjoy cooling off in the shade next to these codfish sculptures. Cape Cod was named after the cod fish!

WHALE'S TAIL

Eleanor and Reginald are friends with a seagull named Gulliver. Every week he swoops down and tells them exciting stories about life at sea. The bunnies know a lot about whales thanks to Gulliver, and to the teachers who give lessons about whales on the Museum grounds.

BUTTERFLY BENCH

This bench at the back of the Museum sits in a garden with plants that attract butterflies. The bunnies love to play with the butterflies! They've never caught one yet. But if Reginald and Eleanor lie very still, a beautiful butterfly might come and sit on the tips of their ears or noses.

HIBISCUS FLOWERS

When they pass by the hibiscus plant, Eleanor and Reginald always stop to admire its big red beautiful flowers. Flowers bring lots of bees to a garden. The bunnies can chat with the bees about the weather.

BUNNY GENERAL STORE

Near the hibiscus plant there's a handy general store. The bunnies love to eat carrots more than any other food. Eleanor and Reginald stop at the general store often to buy some carrots, so that they never run out.

HERB GARDEN

This garden is full of plants that make good medicine. It's also a great place for a bunny to stretch out for a nap. After they wake up, Eleanor and Reginald will snip off some stems of lavender, mint, and chamomile to bring home.

The herbs smell so good and they make a tasty tea.

GLOBE WITH ARROW

This globe is used by people to tell time by tracking the motion of the sun.

The bunnies use it for a different reason. If Reginald or Eleanor get lost during a morning hop around the garden, the arrow points their way back home in time for lunch.
